skills. Firstly, To gain the respect of audience or talk over the top. This is likely to make less inclined to listen to them.

- The body language can encourage people to talk to freely and confidently.
- The most significant example is eye contact. When speaking to individuals or groups of people, adults generally make eye contact 30 to 60% of the time. When in fact, they could communicate much better if they increased that to 60 to 70%.

Someone who gives their full attention to other people is more likely to enjoy a receptive audience when they communicate. The lecture was a great success. It helps students know about something new and prepare themselves for something innovative and new. The lecture ended with a vote of thanks by the professor.

Vocabulary Enhancement on 12.11.2021

- The Vocabulary Enhancement programme for second year students for all the departments was conducted on November 12, 2021, by the centre for corporate relation.
- During this program, the students need to develop their growing vocabulary. To develop vocabulary intentionally, students should be explicitly taught both specific words and word-learning strategies. Explicit instruction in word-learning strategies gives students tools for independently determining the meanings of unfamiliar words that have not been explicitly introduced in class.
- There are four major language skills such as speaking, listening, reading and writing play vital role to enhance vocabulary lessons.

Importance of Listening Skill programme on 18.05.2022

- The Importance of Listening Skill programme for students for all the department was conducted on May 18, 2022, by the centre for corporate relation.
- Listening skills defined as the art of receiving information, interpreting and communicating it. Without effective listening skills, the whole communication channel breaks down. This is why listening skills are important. It forms an integral part of the communication process.

Benefits of Listening:

Listening should not be taken for granted. Before the invention of writing, people conveyed virtually all knowledge through some combination of showing and telling. Elders recited tribal histories to attentive audiences. Listeners received religious teachings enthusiastically. Myths, legends, folktales, and stories for entertainment survived only because audiences were eager to listen.

Nowadays, however, you can gain information and entertainment through reading and electronic recordings rather than through real-time listening. If you become distracted and let your attention wander, you can go back and replay a recording. Despite that fact, you can still gain at least four compelling benefits by becoming more active and competent at real-time listening.

Very often, listening has been loosely defined as hearing. However, there is a world of difference between the two. Especially when it comes to listening skills in students, the word listening takes on a whole new intent.
